MyPath celebrates and congratulates Hannah Carbaugh as Teacher of the Year at T.C. Harris School & Academy

(Lafayette, In.) As a member of the reading team, Hannah helps students with neurodevelopmental disabilities aspire to take a rigorous reading assessment called “I Read” and achieve tremendous academic success.

Hannah sees the ability in every student. She maintains high expectations while creating individualized instruction strategies to meet her students’ needs. She deeply cares for them and takes the time to build strong relationships with each one.

Hannah’s journey with T.C. Harris began as a Direct Support Professional at River Oaks Group Home. She then joined the education team as a teaching assistant and completed her master’s degree in education. She is now an Elementary Education Teacher and an active member of the school’s reading team.

When selecting the Teacher of the Year, T.C. Harris looks for specific qualities: integrity, creativity, compassion, honesty, initiative, willingness to learn, and kindness. Hannah embodies all of these.

Her teammates describe her as calm, consistent, creative, truthful, and caring. She definitely puts students first. The success of her students is proof of her hard work and dedication.

Congratulations, Hannah!
